

Northstar Services Refund Policy

Version: 2.1

Effective date: 1 July 2026

Owner: Billing Operations

Eligibility

Customers may request a refund within 14 calendar days of the original charge. A request must include the account email and invoice ID.

Refunds are available for duplicate charges, confirmed billing errors, and a first subscription charge when the service has not been materially used.

Renewal charges are normally non-refundable after the 14-day window. Northstar may make an exception when a documented service outage prevented use for more than 24 consecutive hours.

Duplicate charges

When the same customer is charged more than once for the same plan and billing period, the extra charge is eligible for a full refund. Support must verify both invoice IDs before submitting the refund. The valid subscription charge remains in place.

Non-refundable items

Usage-based overage charges, one-time onboarding fees, and charges older than 14 days are not refundable unless Billing Operations approves an exception. Promotional credits have no cash value and cannot be refunded to a payment method.

Processing time

After Northstar approves a refund, it is submitted to the original payment method within two business days. Most banks post the credit within five to ten business days. Northstar cannot accelerate the bank's posting time.

Approval and escalation

Support agents may prepare a refund request but may not promise approval. Refunds of USD 100 or less can be approved by a support lead. Larger amounts, requests outside the eligibility window, and repeated refund requests require Billing Operations review.

Suspected fraud, chargebacks, and legal threats must be escalated without issuing a refund. Account-specific eligibility must be checked against the customer's invoices; this policy document alone does not prove that a particular charge qualifies.

Cancellation is separate

Cancelling a subscription prevents future renewals but does not automatically refund an earlier charge. A customer who wants both cancellation and a refund must make both requests.
